The day, I arrived at school early. When I was in the hallway, A huge Backpack was in the way. I yelled, more, you're in my way! After that, it started moving toward me. I yelled, Help! And ran toward the office door. Before I knew it, There were giant Back packs everywhere. They all jumped on me and started wiping me with their straps! I knocked all of them off and ran outside. I said, "Oh, no!" There were more giant Backpacks. So, I ran to my house and said, "Mom, T... , G!" suddenly a person's dog pack attacked me. I figured out it was my dog, T... Then i offered her a treat. She came down, and I gave her the treat. Suddenly, The bell rang, I had to have class with my smelly Jim Bags. I asked to be excused. The Jim Leader said, "O.K." So, I ran out of school as fast as i could. And just in time so. The Bell just rang to end school. When I got home, Mr. Perey Parks where having a fire. They're stupid. I thought. They know Back packs can catch fire really easily. When I was inside

I tried to pack my home work out of my regular sized backpack. As soon as my fingers went in it got alive. I said, "Well, take this." and slamed my Books on it. I went out side with the other and rosted a marshmello. The marshmello caught fire, then the stick, then the backpack. I grabbed fire extinguisher and put the fire out. I went to bed early cause the person packs said we can't be waked. I finally went to sleep. In the morning, I woke up and went to school. When I got there, there were no giant backpacks or jin pads. It was all a dream! The End

Score Point: 3

This response reflects a limited degree of proficiency in narrative writing skills. The writer develops the backpack storyline as a dream. Although many key ideas are provided, they are inadequately organized. The story jumps between the writer's school and home and back again. An accumulation of spelling errors causes some confusion for the reader. Stronger organization and greater control of writing skills are required for a higher score.
